ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT

The Department of EFL provides students with the vital training to meet the demands of global communication and helps them develop proficiency in English and other languages. The Department was established in 1985 and expanded to include other foreign languages such as German, Japanese, French, Chinese, and Korean, and became the Department of English and Foreign Languages in 2005–06. The language department caters adequately to complement the skills acquired by the students in their chosen courses and equips them for a larger global audience. The department offers tailor-made courses for not just B. Tech. students but also for the students pursuing humanities, paramedical and medical degrees. Special certificate and diploma courses in English are also fashioned for International students from different countries like China, Korea, Afghanistan and Iran. The Department, which has been focusing on teaching and research activities, also launched B.A and M.A in English in June 2017. The study of foreign languages and literature provides valuable experience and a potential edge for the future career development of students.

CONFERENCE THEME

Language and literature studies have emerged as a robust and challenging field in global perspective. The advent of cross-disciplinary approaches in studying and analysing literary texts and linguistic choices made by communities or individuals in speech or writing emphasise immersing professionals, researchers and students in conversation, reading, writing and exploring new avenues. Incorporation of interdisciplinary approaches in research and incisive linguistic skills is most sought after in the contemporary higher education and professional world.
